

Barkeep Pour Cost Report – Troubleshooting

How do I set-up Red Bull when I use it in cocktails?

Unlike other mixers and soda, Red Bull is a product that many bars track in their inventories. If you count Red Bull in your Barkeep Inventories, you should also include it in Sales Item Recipes.

When you track Red Bull as an Item in Barkeep, you will need to assign it to a Category within an appropriate Category Group.

The Item Details screen as well as the Items list both show Red Bull in a Category called Red Bull that is part of the Category Group Non-Alcoholic/Mixers.

Reminder: Barkeep allows you to customize Category Groups and Categories to suit your needs.

An Example Sales Item

When Red Bull is included in a cocktail, the quantity used is typically one-third of a can. In the example below we show a Sales Item called Vodka Red Bull. The Sales Item's Recipe specifies a quantity of .33 Cans of Red Bull and 2 ounces of Smirnoff Vodka. BarkeepOnline allows you to use different Units of Measure in the same Recipe (i.e., Oz and Cans). The important step is that you enter the correct quantity(s) for any Recipe.
